

The Impact of the Environment on Human Fertility and Reproductive Health

 Brussels, Belgium

 Online, livestream

 11 May 2023

 info@eshre.eu

World-renowned speakers will be presenting their findings on the impact of environmental factors on human fertility and reproductive health, with the aim of encouraging an open dialogue on related challenges and opportunities.

Programme

9:00 - 9:20	Environmental factors in declining human fertility	N. Skakkebaek (Denmark)
9:20 - 9:40	Environmental exposure and female fertility	R. Beranger (France)
9:40 - 10:00	What is the best approach to assess the impact of endocrine disruptors?	O. V. Martin (UK)
 Coffee break
10:50 - 11:10	Endocrine disruptors and genital tract anomalies	M. Acien (Spain)
11:10 - 11:30	Air pollution and ART	M. A. Checa Vizcaino (Spain)
11:30 - 11:50	Translocation of soot particles from lungs to reproductive organs	T. Nawroth (Belgium)
 Lunch break
13:30 - 13:50	Organic pollutants and reproductive outcomes	P. Damdimopoulou (Sweden)
13:50 - 14:10	Pharmaceutical substances associated with infertility	J. Perrin (France)
14:10 - 14:30	What would an environmentally sustainable reproductive technology industry look like?	C. Richie (the Netherlands)
 Coffee break
15:20 - 15:45	Contribution of climate change and overpopulation on women's health	L. Giudice (USA)
15:45 - 16:05	Disentangling Biological and Behavioural Factors on Fertility - A Proposal	R. Lindahl- Jacobsen (Denmark)
16:05 - 16:30	EU-Report on reproductive toxicants (EU-OSHA)	K. Hougaard (Denmark)
16:30 - 16:55	The regulations of Endocrine Disruptors on a EU level and on national levels	P. De Sutter (Belgium)
17:15	Concluding remarks	